Unique Shopping

Ayrshire offers a unique shopping experience with a range of towns, villages and islands to visit.

Home to a range of independent retailers, galleries, beautiful boutiques, craft and quirky gift shops Ayrshire has an interesting shopping offer.

Kilmarnock is brimming with history and culture, and for shoppers there is a great choice, with an extensive range of both high street names and specialist retailers offering a very diverse range of products. The historic core is centred around John Finnie Street and Bank Street with the former recognised as one of the finest examples of a Scottish Victorian Street with its beautiful red sandstone buildings. Bank Street is a pretty, cobbled street with a medieval layout where there is a thriving hub of wonderful independent shops and cafes.

Shopping in the coastal towns of Ayr, Prestwick, Irvine, Troon and Largs is an enjoyable experience with the golden beaches, seafront promenades, leafy avenues and beautiful parks. These towns offer a mix of well-known high street stores and boutiques. You can often discover a hidden gem off the beaten track. Ayr's attractive Newmarket Street which connects the High Street with the Sandgate, is home to an array of unique retailers including those specialising in whisky and jewellery.

Smaller towns and villages around Ayrshire also have something different to offer, in the shape of exciting independents, often family run. Local producers, whether they are arts and crafts or artisan food and drink often have that perfect gift. Troon has a vibrant range of shops and the coastal town of Prestwick, Scotland's oldest baronial burgh, has a bustling main street, home to a diverse mix of independents, bistros and bars, perfect to relax in and enjoy a drink and sample local produce after a busy day of shopping.

Seaside shopping

The pretty seaside town of Largs has everything you would expect from a traditional seaside resort – a Victorian promenade, beach and including the famous

Nardini ice cream parlour. There are lots of boutiques and gift shops to suit even the most discerning shopper. Just south of Largs is West Kilbride, Scotland's only designated Craft Town. With artist studios and craft galleries, West Kilbride is the ideal opportunity to buy unique gifts direct from the artist.

Shopping gems

Shopping gems are found across the region – luxury knitwear in Galston at the Balmoral Knitwear Mill shop; luxury chocolates in Kilbirnie at Lime Tree Larder and a huge range of whiskies in Ayr at Robbie's Drams. Ayrshire is well known for its love of the ancient sport of golf and gifts for dedicated golfers can be found right across the region.

Craft fairs and markets

Ayrshire's range of craft fairs and markets are also full of great gift ideas so keep an eye out for one and enjoy meeting the local producers.

Island craft and design

Arran is well served by ferry links from Ardrossan Harbour to Brodick. Beautiful surroundings and a range of niche shops specialising in an exciting selection of; jewellery, handmade soaps and food and drink gifts. Arran is an island dotted with galleries and craft workshops which makes for a unique shopping trip.

This booklet presents a sample of the many different shopping experiences in the region and is not intended as a comprehensive list. Extensive efforts have been made to ensure the accuracy of the information in this publication, however it is recommended that visitors contact the businesses.

Craft Town Scotland

Nestled on the Ayrshire coastline overlooking Arran, West Kilbride is Scotland's first accredited Craft Town. Known as "The Village", West Kilbride might be a small town but it offers a great range of independent retailers and designer shops which complement its major attractions, The Barony Centre and Craft Studios.

The Barony Centre is a stunning conversion of an old church and winner of several architectural awards. It hosts an annual programme of craft exhibitions, including national touring shows, with a gallery shop boasting a range of traditional and design-led craft.

The Barony Centre café is an ideal place to rest and re-charge energy levels before indulging in more shopping – it serves light lunches, delicious coffee and scrumptious home baking as recommended by the Herald's cake connoisseur.

Next stop on the craft trail is to each of the 8 craft studios which have a workshop area where work is made on the premises, with the added bonus of a display area where you can buy work directly from the person who made it.

Enjoy the full West Kilbride experience – high-quality goods and service with attention to detail and the personal touch.
